

Dear visitor,

the QR code

talesofthings.com

points to the website of www.talesofthings.com for delivering more information on the exposed item.

To access these information install the free iphone or android application on your phone, enable internet access (we have eduroam here at the Computarium!) and scan the QR code with your phone by launching the applet.

Tales of Things is part of a research project called TOTeM that will explore social memory in the emerging culture of the Internet of Things. The project is a collaboration between Brunel University, Edinburgh College of Art, University College London, University of Dundee and the University of Salford..
